

JULY contents

Regular Columns

- 5 The "Preiss" is Right: Art Deco Sculpture
"The Bookshelf" by Nancy Johnson
- 6 When The Lights Go On Again: The Songs of World War II
"Smack Dab in the Middle" by Donald-Brian Johnson
- 7 Early American Art Pottery: Many Glazes, Shapes Defined
"The Antique Detective" by Anne Gilbert
- 8 Elastic Storage Stacking Bookcases
"Common Sense Antiques" by Fred Taylor
- 9 Swiss Collection
"The Hummel Bzzz" by Don and Beth Woodworth
- 10 20th-century Art Glass
"Antiques & Collecting" by Terry Kovel
- 12 Odd Fellows Equipment
"Cowan's Corner" by Wes Cowan
- 22 Preventative Maintenance: Part II
"Rinker On Collectibles" by Harry L. Rinker

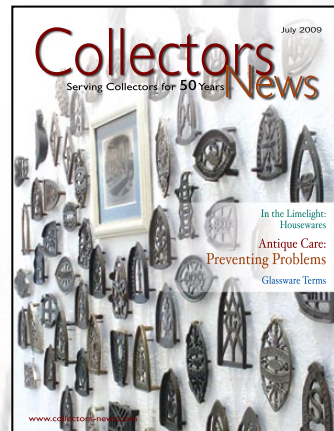

In The Limelight

—This Month: Housewares

- 13 Trash or Cash? McKee Kitchen Shakers
- 25 Rice Cow Creamer Collection
By Kayleen Reusser
- 26 Right as a Trivet
By Melody Amsel-Arieli
- 28 Getting a Charge Out of Collecting Electric Toasters
"Collector Spotlight" on Eric and Susan Murrell
By Stephanie Finnegan
- 30 Compote, Comport, & Other Curiosities in Glass Houseware
"Glass-pertise" by James Measell
- 32 Collecting Porcelain Enamelware for Today's Vintage
Style Kitchens
By C. Dianne Zweig
- 34 Cast-iron Cookware
"Market Trends" by Rinker Enterprises

Plus...

- 4 From the Editor...
- 5 New Books at a Glance
- 14 Business Card Directory (BCD)
- 16 July Calendar

About the Cover

Pictured is a wall display of sad iron stands. The terms "trivet" and "stand" are often used interchangeably, but a "stand" was more specifically used to support a hot pot or hot iron. A few of the stands are held in place with screws and wall anchors or cup hooks; the others are held with wire and picture hooks. To learn more about trivets and stands, turn to page 26. (Photo courtesy of Margaret Lynn Rosack, www.lynn.rosack.com. Photographed by her husband, Ed Rosack.)

